It is claimed that the decision of the Supreme Court in the Roach mandamus case is a great victory of the Democrats. It is a victory for certain Democratic leaders but not for those honest Democrats who believe in a fair deal and in the rights of the people.

The grist mill at Harwood owned by Marshall Miller caught fire about midnight last Thursday and is reported totally destroyed, with all its contents. Along with the machinery and other mill paraphernalia, some grain was destroyed. The mill was located near the Katy railroad tracks and the fire is supposed to have been started by sparks from a passing engine. Some insurance was carried but not enough to make good the loss.—Nevada Herald.

"Like old Walt Mason, when it's hot, we write a lot of Tommy-rot. Our gold darn harp it will not sing; the fiddle has a busted string; we try our best to tempt the muse, and find of course it is no use. Our being great Walt has the budge, and all our stuff is full of fudge. "You imitator," say the clan "Walt Mason is the only man who can make silly words to rhyme, and do it right most every time. So stick your head beneath your wing, and if you think you've got to sing, go out behind the old red barn and sing our lyric to the farm. Don't haunt the minds of mighty men with silly things from your fool pen. So now we'll lie into our bed and put cold cloths upon our head, and try to keep our dome of thought from cracking from this awful hot."—Oakly (Kans.) Graphic.

Our little city has been given a great deal of prominence in the columns of the metropolitan press this week, on account of the unfortunate meeting up with a notorious criminal by one of our citizens. Joseph Wendling suspected of the murder of little Alma Kellner at Louisville, Ky., last December, was arrested in San Francisco, Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Cora Mune, of this place, met him in Houston, Texas last January, and it was through her that the authorities were enabled to capture him. While Mrs. Mune is deeply pained with so much notoriety, she has lent valuable aid to the apprehension of a dangerous criminal, and is justly entitled to a liberal share of the immense reward offered for his capture. No blame can be attached to her for meeting him, as it was just a common occurrence liable to befall anyone.—Hume Telephone.

A minister who has been doing missionary work in India recently returned to New York for a visit. He was a guest at a well known hotel, where everything pleased him except the absence of the very torrid sauces and spices to which he had become accustomed in the Far East. Fortunately he had brought with him a supply of his favorite condiments, and, by arranging with the head waiter, these were placed on his table. One day another guest saw the appetizing bottle on his neighbor's table and asked the waiter to give him some of "that sauce." "I'm sorry sir," said the waiter, "but it is the private property of this gentleman." The waiter however heard the other's remark and told the waiter to pass the bottle. The stranger poured some of the mixture on his meat and took a liberal mouthful. After a moment he turned with tears in his eyes to the minister.

"You're a minister of the gospel?"
"Yes sir."
"And you preach hell and damnation?"
"Yes," admitted the minister.
"Well you're the first minister I ever met that carried samples."

TELLTALE EVIDENCE.

All of the passengers were amused at the dove-like tenderness of the honeymoon couple from the rural districts, and when the train emerged from the tunnel the flashily dressed commercial salesman thought he would have some fun at their expense.

"See here, neighbor," he said in a loud whisper as he touched the nervous bridegroom on the arm, "don't you know there are rules against kissing on this road?" "Rules against kissing?" faltered the frightened countryman.

"Certainly! You were kissing while coming through the tunnel!"

"How in the world did you find that out, mister?"

"Why by the soot marks. There was one on your nose before we entered the tunnel and now there is one of the same size on the bride's nose."

And just then the pretty bride began to stamp her foot impetuously and upbraid her awkward spouse.

"Thar, now, Silas, what did I tell you? Told you not to come on the soft coal route. If we had come on any other route, they wouldn't have ketched us!"—Ex.

Life of Gov. Johnson

The life-story of the "Great Governor of Minnesota" is the most inspiring story of the life of a real man that has been published in this generation.

The late governor was characterized as the most lovable man in public life since the days of Abraham Lincoln, and his biography is instructive, inspirational and thrilling.

The "Life" was published by authority of the widow, and in her honor. The authors and publishers were intimate friends of the late governor, one of them, Mr. Day, being his private secretary.

The book contains 430 type pages and 22 pages of illustrations, or 452 pages all told, and is a perfect specimen of the best printing and binding.
